

PLAIN-ENGLISH OWNER SUMMARY

Restated CC&Rs for Coyote Springs Homeowners Association

Why you are being asked to vote

The Board of Directors is asking Owners to approve a Restated Declaration of Covenants, Conditions, and Restrictions (CC&Rs). This is a full replacement of the original CC&Rs. Once recorded, the new document will completely replace the old one.

This update does not change the character of Coyote Springs. Instead, it modernizes and clarifies the rules so they are: - Consistent with current Oregon law (ORS Chapter 94) - Easier to understand and enforce - Clear about Owner and Association responsibilities

What did NOT change

It is important to understand what this update does not do:

- ✗ No change to single-family, detached-home use
- ✗ No new HOA control over private property interiors
- ✗ No HOA ownership or maintenance of roads, wells, or fire systems
- ✗ No special developer (“declarant”) rights
- ✗ No expansion of fines beyond what already exists
- ✗ No emergency or forced wildfire entry powers

Coyote Springs remains a small, owner-controlled, rural community.

What DID change (and why)

1. The CC&Rs were fully restated

Rather than patching the old document, the Association created a clean, modern restatement. This: - Eliminates outdated or conflicting language - Improves legal clarity - Makes the document easier for Owners, Boards, and attorneys to rely on

2. Alignment with Oregon law

The original CC&Rs were written under older legal standards. The new CC&Rs: - Align with the Oregon Planned Community Act (ORS Chapter 94) - Follow current requirements for notice, voting, enforcement, and records - Reduce legal risk to the Association and Owners

3. Clear separation of documents

The governing documents now have distinct roles:

- CC&Rs – Land-use rules, owner obligations, and property-related restrictions
- Bylaws – How the HOA is run (meetings, elections, committees, budgets)
- Fine Schedule – How violations are handled, including notice and hearing rights
- Design Rule Guidelines

This structure is considered best practice under Oregon law.

4. Better-defined enforcement and due process

The new CC&Rs: - Confirm the HOA's authority to enforce rules - Require enforcement to follow the Fine Schedule, which includes: - Written notice of violations - Time to correct problems when appropriate - The right to request a hearing before fines are imposed

This protects both fairness to Owners and consistency for the Board.

5. Rural and wildfire-aware language (without overreach)

The CC&Rs now: - Acknowledge wildfire risk common to rural Oregon - Allow the Board to adopt reasonable defensible-space guidelines - Make clear that: - Fire protection relies on public fire services - The HOA does not take on firefighting or emergency entry powers

This balances safety awareness with respect for property rights.

6. Clear statement of what the HOA does (and does not) maintain

The restated CC&Rs explicitly state that the HOA: - Does not own or maintain private roads - Does not operate wells or water systems - Does not own fire-suppression infrastructure

This clarity helps avoid misunderstandings and liability issues.

How approval works

- Approval requires the percentage of Owner votes required by Oregon law
 - Once approved, the Restated CC&Rs will be recorded with the county
 - The new CC&Rs become effective on the date of recording

Why the Board recommends approval

The Board believes this update: -

- a. Protects property values –
 - b. Reduces legal and financial risk –
 - c. Makes the rules clearer and fairer –
 - d. Preserves the rural character of Coyote Springs –
 - e. Positions the community for stable, long-term governance

Questions?

Owners are encouraged to review: - The Restated CC&Rs (full legal document) - The Bylaws - The Fine Schedule – The Design Rules

If you have questions, please contact the Board before voting.
